

Big Cats

Do you like cats? If you do, look up there. Do you see the cat?

That is not the sort of cat that you keep in your home and feed cat food. That is a bob·cat.

Bob·cats are good hunt·ers. They hunt rabb·its, rats, fox·es, and some·times deer and sheep.

That bob·cat's name is Rob·ert, or Bob for short. Get it?

If you look up on that rock,
you will see a cat that's bigg·er than a bob·cat. It's a pan·ther.

Pan·thers can have spots.
They can be tan, too. Here at the Green Fern Zoo, we have two black pan·thers. The name of this one is Jet.

That's Jet's sis·ter, Flash, up on the tree branch. Flash has strong legs that help her run fast. She has sharp teeth and sharp claws that help her hunt rabb·its and deer. She can use her claws to scam·per up a tree if she needs to.

Look at the side of her leg! You can see that she is not all black like Jet. She has some spots.
